A sense of pride – and breeding success

Grit and inner motivation are building blocks to success, yet we sometimes struggle with how to instil these qualities in children. The arrogance of feeling superior to others was once considered to be one of the seven deadly sins. But researchers have focused on a healthier, more productive type of pride. Authentic pride — the deep personal satisfaction of hitting a valued goal — can encourage the kind of self-discipline and hard work it takes to stay motivated, overcome challenges and achieve.

A study last year by German researchers found students who reported feeling positive emotions such as pride and enjoyment in their work achieve better results. Over time, these students achieve more highly than students who had the same level of ability but fewer positive emotions. On the other hand, feeling a lack of pride in our work can motivate us to work harder, too. One study found that students who did poorly told researchers that they planned to study more in the future and then went on to perform better on the next exam.

Pride acts as a barometer of achievement. Pride makes you value long-term goals more than short-term ones and builds self-control and grit from the bottom up.

Parents and teachers play a critical role in building their child's sense of pride. Our brains don't come hard-wired to know what to take pride in. So children initially look to parents and then to teachers and peers to find out what's valued by those around them and therefore what goals are worthwhile to pursue. Therefore, our role modelling through words and actions, has a significant influence on young people.

When young people are engaged in areas where they feel confident and proud, it creates a ripple effect. This gives them the motivation and encouragement to take on new challenges in other areas of their lives.

To teach children how to use pride as a motivational tool, point it out: Did you notice how you felt when you aced your test, built that model plane or sang that song? If they're feeling a lack of pride over a test score or performance, talk through the actions they can take to avoid feeling that way in the future. To stay intrinsically motivated, children must feel as if they're improving toward a goal, so point out the pride they should feel in the small successes along the way.

When we withhold genuine praise or downplay authentic pride, we deprive children of a powerful source of motivation that can help them persevere in the face of challenges today — and throughout their lives.

Chaplaincy

The College Council and Executive Leadership Team met together recently for a Day Retreat facilitated by Reverend Steve McMahon. It was a chance for us to think more deeply and intentionally about how our faith informs our decisions and the relationships we make, as well as ways we can let others know about the love and compassion of God.

We seem to be charging towards the end of Term 2. The Year 11 and 12 students are in the middle of their exam block and many of the other year levels are finishing up important assessment. I had a request from some of the Year 12 students for a de-stress/relaxation type of Chapel service and I was more than happy to oblige. It's incredible how some simple techniques, a chance to relax and have a little fun can help towards bolstering ones resilience and sense of well-being. We wish them well in their endeavours.

Last week Mrs Phyllis Marsh our Indigenous Liaison Officer, helped the Chapel Captains and Cultural Attaché to create a really meaningful and moving service for all the age groups across our College during National Reconciliation Week. Phyllis shared something of her story and the story of her people, and encouraged us to work towards reconciliation by focussing on what we have in common, while acknowledging the hurts of the past. Students and Staff were very engaged in the services and appreciated Mrs Marsh's openness and honesty.

On Sunday 3 June, I celebrated the 26th Anniversary of my ordination to the priesthood, which took place all those years ago in St John's Cathedral, Hong Kong. Reverend Brenda made me the most delightful card and the Hogan's presented me with a scrumptious cake, the left-overs of which have been very popular in the Wellbeing Centre.

Even Worship@WestMAC is almost over for another term. This Sunday 10 June will be our last formal service at Chapel. On Sunday 17 June we'll be meeting at 10.30am for a BBQ/Picnic/Walk/Bask in the sunshine at Kholo Gardens. There isn't a coffee shop or café so you'll need to bring anything you want to eat, drink or cook but we'd love you to join us.

Every blessing

Middle School

We are entering an exciting, yet challenging time of the term with students either currently immersed in assessment or approaching deadlines in the coming week. I have spoken to the students about the importance of providing themselves with the best opportunity to succeed through thorough preparation and using their time effectively. It is my expectation that students are working hard in class and managing their study at home towards achieving their potential. Importantly, this is not a journey they need to take in isolation. I encourage all Middle School students to engage with their teachers and actively ask questions rather than possibly creating a closed mindset. I encourage parents and carers to also check in with their children and offer encouragement and help towards achieving positive outcomes.

Furthermore, I would like to congratulate all Middle School students who have actively contributed to their school community through sport, music, dance or other co-curricular activities over the course of the term. I strongly encourage all students to end the term by participating in all remaining games, rehearsals and/or activities with a strong sense of WestMAC spirit.

Finally, I would just like to raise some general housekeeping notices:

Student Absence

In the scenario of a student being absent for the day, please call our absentee line on 3813 4580 before 8am. Calling this direct number before 8am streamlines our ability to notify our teachers quickly and efficiently of absences.

Lost Property

Our lost property is full of uniforms, books, lunch boxes and other paraphernalia. Please have students check this before the last day of term as this will be cleared out over the June/July school holidays. Can I also remind you to clearly label all student property to ensure that items can be clearly identified?

Building healthy friendships

Healthy friendships provide children with a sense of connection and belonging as well as a source of pleasure and fun. Through healthy friendships, children learn important life skills such as turn-taking, acceptance of differences, negotiation of different needs and empathy. Families can support children to develop the skills to connect with their peers in ways that are healthy and positive, as well as how to identify an unhealthy relationship and how to manage these effectively.

So what defines a healthy friendship? Emily McDonald, Senior Manager Practice Development for Relationships Australia Victoria says, "A healthy friendship comprises:

- Equality: Both people in the relationship feel they can speak about their experiences or speak their minds without feeling worried, scared or criticised. There is a sense of general fairness about how decisions get made and the compromises are pretty even.

- Mutual respect: Respect in a friendship means that each person values who the other is and understands the person's boundaries. You don't have to agree on everything to have a healthy relationship.
- Good communication: Good communication is about talking and listening, and listening and talking.
- Experiencing insight: Knowing yourself and empathy are important aspects of good communication in friendships. It is important to try and talk about experiences that you feel uncomfortable with, rather than bottle it up inside. Sometimes you have to take a risk, feel a little bit vulnerable and speak your mind.
- Separate identities: Friends should be able to be themselves whilst still being together. There are sometimes compromises that people will make for their friends, but you shouldn't feel that you are always the one making the compromises and that you are struggling to be yourself. Don't attempt to control or change someone.
- Support and having fun: This is important in both the hard times and good times. Make sure you're supporting your friend to pursue their interests."

As children get older, friendships can become more complex. Parents can help children navigate the twists and turns of their relationships with their peers right from birth through the development of social skills and empathy. There are many ways families can support children to develop empathy and social skills, and they vary depending on the child's age.

Younger children

- Name feelings to not only help young children manage their own feelings, but start thinking about what other children may be feeling.
- Socialise widely by arranging plenty of opportunities to meet lots of different people.
- Praise your child for being friendly or caring with others.
- Play games with them to learn about co-operation and consideration.
- Model positive social skills, say 'hello', and 'thankyou'.

Older children

- Teach social skills for co-operative and respectful friendships, such as listening to others, taking turns and resolving conflict.
- Talk about values, such as respect, responsibility and caring for others.
- Acknowledge caring and helpful actions of the child, which will give them a sense of pride and confidence in caring for their friends.

Supporting children, through modelling and teaching, to build healthy friendships lays the foundation for later interpersonal relationships. Children who have experienced healthy friendships in their early years are more likely to have healthy friendships later in life. Healthy friendships provide children with a source of social support which can be accessed when children meet stress and challenges. Forming and maintaining healthy friendships supports children in their development of resilience and coping skills.

There are times when friendships change and can become a source of tension and stress for children. "Conflict is normal", says Emily. "It's how you manage conflict that matters." Families can support children to navigate these challenges by listening to their child's concerns and supporting them to work through the issue. This may involve acknowledging the child's feelings and helping them to practice empathy with their friend's feelings. It may also involve talking about what friendship means to the child and whether their behaviour or that of their friend reflects their idea of friendship.

When children are younger it is appropriate for families to have a higher level of involvement in their child's friendships, to support them to work through friendship issues. As children get older, the role of families changes. In cases of conflict within friendship groups, the role of families shifts to supporting their child by providing them with skills to manage issues independently.

For older children, families can provide support in a number of ways to assist with friendship conflict resolution. Help your child to articulate their concerns by using "I" statements like "When [event] happens, I feel [emotion]", and help them to avoid using "you" statements about their friend, which can result in feelings of blame. Support your child to articulate their needs and feelings with their friend, and encourage them to take on an active listening role when their friend is expressing their needs and feelings. Finally, families can support their child to reflect on what their friend has said, to see their perspective, which is a key ingredient in resolving conflict.

Sometimes, even with the best conflict negotiation, some friendships end. In these cases, families can support children to process their feelings of grief and loss and look for opportunities to connect with and foster other friendships.

TAS Sport

As we come to the final week of competition for Trimester 2, I would like to thank all students and coaches for their efforts. After this weekends round against St John's we will have the TAS Finals round. Please be aware that the finals week is not like most home and away draws. Teams will be spread across the TAS schools for their finals playoff.

History was made in Week 6 of Trimester 2 when our Senior Firsts Netball and Rugby teams defeated John Paul College (JPC) for the first time in WestMAC sporting history. This really signifies a changing of the guard within the competition and the concerted efforts of our students and coaches to continue to improve. Having witnessed many WestMAC Firsts teams on the receiving end of some massive defeats at the hands of JPC teams, it was great to see our students compete hard and yet still be gracious in victory when shaking hands at the end of the game. WestMAC Sport is moving forward and it is these little victories and breakthroughs that indicate we are moving in the right direction.

Junior TAS Rugby Results

Under 10 Team Undefeated!

Round 6 against Canterbury marked the end of the Junior TAS Rugby season for 2018. Congratulations to all players for a fantastic season. It was particularly pleasing to see our students' knowledge, understanding and skill set improve over the course of the year.

The Under 12 team finished the season winning 50% of their games and going down narrowly in the other three games. The team played with enthusiasm and passion and I wish them many happy returns as they enter into TAS Rugby next year. A special thank you to Mr Ash Purvey for his time and effort coaching the team and passing on his knowledge to the players.

The Under 10 team finished the season undefeated. All players are to be congratulated on an outstanding achievement. This is the first time in six years that WestMAC have had an undefeated Junior TAS Rugby team. The team worked tirelessly at training and played a great style of rugby centred on teamwork and effort. A big thank you to Mr Trav McDowell for his time, effort and expertise he demonstrated throughout the season. A summary of Round 6 results is as follows:

Under 10	Under 12
V Canterbury	V Canterbury
Won 62-19	Won 19-10
UNDEFEATED

Round 6 Netball Results:

Well done to all netball players and coaches on a great round of netball at Cannon Hill with four teams winning their games and two team suffering narrow losses. The level of skill on court was high and this was reflected in a number of opposition coaches commenting on our style of play. A special mention must go to both Year 5 Red and Year 5 Navy teams who remain undefeated with just one round remaining.

This weekend will see fixtures being played at Ipswich Netball Association. This is a very exciting change for the WestMAC community and I have no doubt that all players and families will enjoy the extra sleep in and less travel time! A summary of the round 6 fixtures are below:

Asian Garden Workshop

The elements of Chinese and Japanese gardens are quite similar but the actual structure and nature of the gardens are different.

A Chinese garden is like a collection of tiny 'secret gardens'. As you wander along the corridor or across the zigzag bridge, each twist and turn leads you to view these secret gardens through windows and doorways each giving a different perspective to the same scene. The doorways and windows are like picture frames with an ever changing view. Chinese gardens seem to be quite 'busy' but if you sit quietly, the weeping willows and flowing water feels like music to soothe away your worries.

Probably the most famous Japanese garden style is the 'sand and rock garden'. In this garden, plants and water are replaced by gravel, stone and sand. It is a garden to sit and contemplate rather than to view. In other gardens, there is an air of calmness as you wander along the tranquil walkways with silence interrupted only by the soft sound of water gently flowing through bamboo pipes into stone water basins strategically placed around the garden so that guests can scoop up water to cleanse their hands (and their minds).

Well, our gardens were not quite like these but here is a sample of the wonderful gardens created by some of our students and visitors at their workshop. The students looked very proud of themselves as they headed home with their gardens held very carefully in their hands.

Library

It has been fantastic to see so many students using the library facilities in the past week to work on a variety of assessment. While students across the College have nearly finished with their assessment this term, we are very pleased to introduce some new online services to support them in their future tasks. All of these tools are readily accessible from home and school through the library's Infiniti portal. We encourage students to take advantage of these tools when they are investigating topics and undertaking research.

1. Britannica School: Don't be fooled by the name, Britannica School is far more than your old Britannica encyclopedia! This online resource is a fully searchable encyclopedia (easily adjusted to the reading level appropriate to the user) that also holds a wealth of primary sources, including images, video, and curated web and database content. An excellent place to get an overview for new topics.

2. Australia and New Zealand Reference Centre: A full-text database of a huge range of academic and professional journals, periodicals and newspapers, offering depth and breadth for examining current issues, topical tasks and historical evidence.
3. Science Reference Centre and History Reference Centre: both extensions of the ANZ Reference Centre, but with more specific focus and the added benefit of being able to refine searches by Lexile reading level, which is a fantastic option, particularly for younger researchers.

In other library news, last week we hosted the auditions for positions on the Write-A-Book-In-A-Day competition. This national competition takes place each year, with teams of up to 10 students working together over a single 12 hour day to create an illustrated book for a specified audience, given certain parameters. WestMAC teams have done exceptionally well in this event over the past few years, and the standard of writing, illustration and editing displayed by students auditioning was amazing. We look forward to working with Mrs Googe and the teams in the weeks ahead on their training and the event itself.

Reconciliation Week

Last week, 27 May to 3 June the college celebrated Reconciliation Week. The theme for Reconciliation Week this year was 'Don't Keep History a Mystery'. All students from Prep to Year 12 took part in a Reconciliation theme Chapel service, where the message was about Reconciliation and how we all have a role to play in 'sharing and caring' with each other.

Junior School celebrated Reconciliation as part of the Under Eights Day, here they experienced Boomerang design, Dot painting and writing Message Sticks.

Middle School celebrated in sharing their thoughts by answering: 'What does Reconciliation mean to you?' It was wonderful to see these students embrace this activity and share their thoughts.

2021 and Vet Qualification for University Entry

QUT

QUT supports the inclusion of a VET qualification in the calculation of a Queensland ATAR. They will also assess an eligible VET in schools (VETiS) qualification independently for admission where the school leaver has obtained an ATAR.

For entry to QUT from 2021:

- An ATAR or a complete International Baccalaureate Diploma (IBD) will be an essential criteria for school-leaver entry to QUT.
- School leavers who obtain an ATAR will be assessed on their ATAR and, if they have completed an eligible VETiS qualification at school, then that VETiS qualification can also be assessed for entry independently.
- School leavers who pursue only a VETiS qualification as a secondary school outcome will not be eligible for entry to QUT on the basis of their completed VETiS qualification alone for a period of two years following their secondary studies.
- School leavers with neither an ATAR nor a VETiS qualification (ATAR-ineligible applicants) will not be eligible for entry to QUT.
- Performing arts qualifications will not be assessed for admission for any applicant.

See the website for more information about entry in 2021. If you have questions, contact QUT Admissions on qut.applications@qut.edu.au

UQ

With the introduction of the new senior assessment and tertiary entry systems (SATE), there are changes to how Vocational Education and Training (VET) is treated as part of the senior curriculum.

Under the new system, a completed VET award (eg. AQF Certificate III, Certificate IV or Diploma) may be used in the calculation of a student's ATAR where this is one of the student's best eligible study results. Currently, VET awards do not contribute to the calculation of the OP.

From 2020 onwards however, UQ will no longer allow school-leaver applicants to receive a standalone selection rank on the basis of a VET award alone. This change will only impact students applying for tertiary entry in the year immediately following Year 12.

Non-school-leaver applicants will still be able to use their VET qualifications to apply for entry to UQ in subsequent years, and this change will not impact students completing their OP in 2018 (current Year 12 students) or 2019 (current Year 11 students).

UQ have made this decision in support of the recommendation from the Minister for Education's Senior Secondary Assessment Taskforce to preserve the integrity of the ATAR by encouraging young people to stay within the secondary education system and not seek early exit. UQ will therefore not be considering 'alternative' qualifications from current school leavers for tertiary entry in the year following Year 12, with the exception of an IB Diploma.
